Ajinomoto Co., Inc. and CJ Japan Corp. Settle Japan Patent Litigation Regarding Manufacturing Process for Monosodium Glutamate (MSG) Products CJ Japan Pays Settlement Money

Tokyo, May 31, 2022 – On September 24, 2020, the Tokyo District Court decided in favor of Ajinomoto Co., Inc. (“Ajinomoto Co.”) in a patent infringement suit it had filed against CJ Japan Corp. (“CJJ”), an affiliate of CJ CheilJedang Corp. (“CJCJ”) of South Korea, which imports and sells MSG products. CJJ objected to the decision and appealed to the Intellectual Property High Court, but this litigation recently concluded when Ajinomoto Co. and CJJ reached settlement conditions that include receipt of monetary payment from CJJ. Ajinomoto Co.’s patents remain valid and enforceable.

Ajinomoto Co. also filed suit against CJCJ and its affiliates (collectively “CJ Group”) in the Düsseldorf District Court in August 2016, and CJ Group appealed the first-instance decision. This litigation regarding German patent infringement relating to Ajinomoto Co.’s manufacturing process for MSG products is not included in the settlement and remains pending.

The Ajinomoto Group will continue its research and development so as to further contribute to solving health issues by utilizing the knowledge and technology cultivated through more than 100 years of amino acid research. We believe that infringement of patent rights and other intellectual property rights hinders such research efforts, and we will continue to enforce and protect our intellectual property rights.
