

Purification and crystallization

Benefits

Purification processes can be built that give the target product quality and purity from fermentation culture containing various different components.

Crystal shape and size can be controlled by changing the parameters of the fermentation and purification processes.

The overall process can be designed by optimizing isolation and purification processes in accordance with the facilities.

Highly pure products can be produced

Large-volume and low-cost production is possible

Production with stable quality is possible

